

NACFB introduce Regentsmead

The NACFB have introduced a new patron. Regentsmead is a private finance and property group established in 1934 specialising in residential development funding.

They are lending only their own funds, all of which are generated internally and they are not reliant on credit lines or external shareholders for our funding.

James Bloom of Regentsmead said "We have just launched a new, easy to sell product which we believe is the market leader and this should make it very easy for the members of the NACFB to introduce suitable business to us and start earning fees straight away."

"We are very excited about our patronage of the NACFB and we are an advocate of the extremely high standards they insist on which closely match our own. We are sure there will be many mutual benefits by us working with the NACFB and we look forward to seeing the members at future events.

"As the only lender in the entire market lending purely their own funds we are able to put in place measures that mean our brokers partners are in the best position possible when placing deals with us"

Regentsmead are looking for residential development loans of between £100,000 - £1m although they will look at larger cases on an individual basis. They lend as far north as the midlands and cover the entire south east/south west (usually excluding Cornwall), but do lend into South Wales.
